

Middle Ages Research

Encyclopedia Britannica:

<http://www.britannica.com/EBchecked/topic/339421/library/62010/Rome#toc62013>

*This site has multiple pages, therefore students can scroll through the pages for relevant information.

History: (like the History Channel)

<http://www.history.com/topics/middle-ages>

*Multiple areas of the Middle Ages can be researched, and there are some great videos kids can watch ... great for those resources kids who need the audio/visual support!

British Library:

<http://www.bl.uk/learning/histcitizen/medieval/medievalrealms.html>

*Multiple pages of information about the different medieval realms.

BBC History:

http://www.bbc.co.uk/history/british/middle_ages/

*Specifically focused on the British-related information from the middle ages, however it does have information well-laid out.

Annenberg Learner:

<http://www.learner.org/interactives/middleages/morefeud.html>

*Geared more for a teacher resource, however the information is at the appropriate reading level.
